Adult Faith Formation

Love is the whole heart of God, and in Matthew 22:34–40 Jesus makes it breathtakingly clear: everything rises or falls on how we love. To love God with our whole being is to let Him become the center that shapes every choice, every desire, every step. And to love our neighbor is to let God's own tenderness flow through us, turning ordinary moments into holy encounters of compassion and mercy.

El amor es el corazón de Dios, y en Mateo 22:34–40 Jesús lo deja claro de manera impresionante: todo depende de cómo amamos. Amar a Dios con todo nuestro ser es dejar que Él sea el centro que guía cada decisión, cada deseo y cada paso. Y amar al prójimo es permitir que la ternura de Dios fluya a través de nosotros, convirtiendo momentos ordinarios en encuentros sagrados de compasión y misericordia.

FROM THE DESK OF THE PASTOR

Here is a revised version that avoids “our,” keeps your pastoral tone, and stays clear, encouraging, and practical.

Participating in the Elections This November (~.45 page — pastoral, encouraging, practical)

My dear friends in Christ, This coming November, the United States will once again enter an important moment: the national elections. Even though I am not an American citizen, I see how meaningful this moment is for many of you. Voting is not only a civic responsibility — it is a way of shaping the future of your families, your community, and the values you hope will guide this nation.

Some people feel their vote is small. But in the eyes of God, small things matter. A single candle brightens a dark room. A single act of kindness changes a heart. And a single vote, offered with prayer and conscience, becomes part of a larger movement toward the common good.

So I encourage you: participate with faith and clarity. Pray before you vote. Ask the Holy Spirit to guide your mind and calm your heart. Review the issues carefully. Seek reliable information. Make sure your registration is updated. Plan your voting day now — whether by mail, early voting, or in person. If someone you know needs help getting to the polls, accompany them.

And above all, vote with hope. Elections can bring tension, strong emotions, and division. But as Christians, you can enter this moment with peace, knowing that God remains present above every headline and every debate. Your role is simple: act with conscience, choose with prayer, and trust that God walks with this nation through every season.

Participating in the elections is one small way you can be a light — steady, faithful, and hopeful — for the future of this country.

Fr. Joseph
